Overcoming many years in the instability of the political, Cambodia is in peace now and importantly make a great stride in aquaculture, fisheries, livestock through the support from the government. In recent, Cambodia strongly focuses on strengthening the fisheries industry.

CAMBODIA'S FISHING INDUSTRY

Cambodia is home to some of the world's most intensive freshwater fisheries. The 2.6 million tonnes of fish caught annually in the Mekong basin represent seven times more than the catch of North American inland fisheries and more than 10 times the entire fish catch in Australia. Fish production in Cambodia is three times as big as the country's pig production and 20 times bigger than its chicken production. Most Cambodians rely on fish as a source of affordable protein.
